BRIAN LEE WRITES TO ERNEST PEARCE

Lot 122 in the December 2019 members auction comprises seven bookplates made for Brian North Lee (1936-2007), who from 32 Barrowgate Road, London W4 4QY, addressed these lines to Ernest Pearce in a letter of 25 April 2005:

Dear Ernest - Here, as I promised, are some of my personal bookplates which I'd like you to have as a small gift. The little label in brick red was designed by Mark Bury, who I wrote up in the Journal some time ago. The [Hassall] label in gold and black uses one of Joan's borders and was printed by Jonathan Stephenson at his Rocket Press. The wood-engraved Ganymede is of course by Simon Brett. The nice little label with a quill pen and my name was a gift from Roy Cooney. Ian Stephens engraved on wood Harehope Burn in Northumbria with a nice little dipper perching on a stone in the foreground. My full armorial was engraved on copper by Stanley Reece, who also did my heraldic badge plate in the same medium. I hope you'll have enjoyed my article on his work in the latest Journal.

I don't collect any more, and it's probably as well, for otherwise there would be quite a number of items in the forthcoming Simpson auction which I'd have a try for. All in all I'm far more keen nowadays to see extended bookplate documentation, and from as many people as possible, and I spend quite a bit at time and effort trying to encourage it. When I first met you in that shop in Cecil Court and you told me how to get in touch with Tom Owen and the Exchange Club I doubt either of us would have dreamed what a lively future bookplate collecting and writings on the subject would have. We've much to be grateful for.

Ernest Pearce (1930-2012) was a member of the Bookplate Exchange Club from 1954 to 1967. Brian Lee, who joined it in 1969, records in Some Recollections of a Bookplate Collector, 1988, that "if my shade lingers hereafter around loved haunts, they would include Kelham* and Cecil Court; and it was in the latter that I made my first contact with the bookplate fraternity. In 1968, having read Badeley's book and put my ex-libris in an album, I began calling at bookshops to ask about bookplates. One of them was on the left as you enter Cecil Court from the Lane Another customer, who turned out to be Ernest Pearce, came forward and said that he too was a collector. He told me of the Exchange Club, gave me Tom Owen's address, and added that it was a shame that I had started too late to build up a substantial collection." Neither of them knew that Brian was soon to acquire many thousands of plates from bookseller Thomas Thorp, being the greater part of the Reuben Levine collection, sold at Sotheby's in 1969.

* where he spent time, having thought to enter the Anglican priesthood, but later decided that teaching suited him better than a religious life.  both the book and a packet of ex-libris were gifts from friend Ken Guichard (1914-2002, Kenneth MacKinnon Guichard, entomologist and print dealer/collector/author) who initiated BNL's interest in collecting bookplates.

REPORT ON AUCTION 88 - HELD ON 7 SEPTEMBER 2019

GT Friend’s armorial for Lord Moutbatten (Lot 10) fetched three times its estimate of £50, assisted by the accompanying letter from Patricia, 2nd Countess. The rare Jaco-bean pictorial for Tucker the portrait painter ran up to £130 (Lot 193, est. £65), sold to Anthony Pincott, who had featured it in the Summer newsletter. The day’s most lively bidding was seen in a spirited tussle over two Sherborn plates in Lot 84, con-cluded at £90, far above the too modest estimate. Large and small Goodens for the Royal College of Surgeons achieved £95 (Lot 9), and the North American buyer of a set of Wilberforce armorials (Lot 190) paid £80. The pictorial armorial for All Souls’ College sold at £70 (Lot 189, est. £40). At £1,000 in total, the top twelve lots more than doubled their £448 estimate. Amid 28 lots sold at £31 and above (£1,097 versus est. £744) the only items not to reach estimate were, surprisingly, three Eric Gill exlibris. In the range £20-30 were 44 lots (£1,116 versus est. £962), 28 over estimate. In the range £10-19 were 60 lots (£851, est. £913) with 21 over estimate. Only 19 lots sold for less than £10 (£154, est. £211), only one lot above estimate. Bargains exist among 29 lots remaining for sale (aggregate estimate £660). Maybe all this analysis will assist bidders to form a view on how to pitch their bids in future auctions.
